EXPLORER DANCE

Red, green and white streamers from which were suspended balloons were the decorations for the Explorer Post 31 dance held at the Rochester Fire Station.

Explorer Post 31 members spun records for dancing and Calvin R. Daggett provided music on his guitar for square dancing. Mr. Daggett is explorer advisor and did the calling for the square dancing.

Explorer Post 31 members and their guests attending the dance included Raymond Daggett and Doris Hartley; Dennis Arruda and Nita Norton; Norman Bastien and Gloria Savery; Robert Gonet and Geraldine Lawrence; Wayne Lawrence and Pamela Lawrence; Stephen Faust and Phyllis Hartley; Charles Wolf and Carol Power; Earle O. Phillips, Jr. and Elaine Gurney; Thomas Kenney and Sheila Walker; and Arthur Benner, who is president of Explorer Post 31.

In charge of decorating the Fire Station for the dance were E. Phillips, chairman, assisted by R. Daggett, T. Kenney, D. Arruda and C. Wolf. Chaperones at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin R. Daggett. Refreshments served buffet style included assorted sandwiches, cupcakes, punch and candy.

LET'S GIVE INGENUITY A BREAK!

Complimentary remarks, regarding a group of 3 young men known as the Rebels, came our way and to us seemed of interest, so we pass it along to our readers.

The instrumental combo, consisting of Mike Cobb, Ricky and Danny Regan with guitars and drums, is a little unique in that although Mike on guitar is the leader and head songster, each and every boy is so versatile, they all play any of the instruments and sing.

During the holidays Mike and Dan played and sung at a Christmas party at Gingras Garage which was thoroughly enjoyed by the station's help and invited guests. On January 17th they will be playing for Bill Suzan at the Mattapoisett Grange.

Isn't it nice to know these ambitious youngsters have figured out a way to do something constructive as do, I believe, the large percentage of our local young people, when so

100 Years Ago -- 1862

Oct. 14, 1862. Mrs. George Purrington, Jr. wrote on her diary: "We received tidings tonight that a rebel steamer has taken and destroyed eight whalers--among which is the Ocean Rover in which William Harlow sailed. Sad news for Addie (his wife)."

The "rebel steamer" was the famous Confederate sea-raider Alabama, which in the next two years captured and burned over 50 Union vessels. Built in England, she sailed directly to the Azores in early September to lie in wait for Yankee ships, particularly whalers.

The Bark Ocean Rover, launched from the Holmes Yard (Shipyard Park) in 1859, was the last vessel built in Mattapoisett before the outbreak of the war. She sailed for the Western Grounds with four Mattapoisett men as officers--James M. Clark, Captain; William Harlow, second mate; Marshall Keith, fourth mate; and Charles B. Hammond, boat steerer. spent a season in the Atlantic, sending home 240 bbls. of sperm oil, 250 of whale oil, and 2000 lbs. of whalebone. Then she sailed around the Cape of Good Hope and spent two years in the Indian Ocean and the seas of the Dutch East Indies. Now, late in the summer of 1862, she was homeward bound from the Cape of Good Hope.

Arriving off the island of Flores in the Azores, her crew learned for the first time that for a year and a half their country had been split asunder by bitter civil war--and learned, too, of their immediate danger from the Alabama.

No time was lost. Up anchor and set all sail were the orders. But the wind dropped, and the Ocean Rover rolled helplessly becalmed as the Alabama steamed up. The thoughts of the crew must have been bitter. They had been three years from home. They had come from 15,000 miles away and now were so close-- on the last lap. Besides the cargo they had sent home, they had 900 bbls. of sperm oil in the casks below decks: at inflated war prices enough to pay off each man handsomely.

But they were helpless. Capt. Clark ordered the Stars and Stripes set and awaited the summons to surrender. The formalities completed, the Confederates treated their prisoners courteously, had them sign their paroles of honor, and then sent them ashore to Ponta Delgada, Flores.

Then Capt. Semmes, the brilliant commander of the Alabama, pulled one of the tricks for which he became famous. (To be cont.)

A note on the men mentioned above; Capt. James Clark at this time had his home in Cannonville, but later built and lived in the house on Pearl St. owned and occupied by Mrs. Ella Gibbons. Charles B. Hammond was grandfather of Mr. Ralph Dunn and lived in the house on the north side of Rt. 6 across from the Mattapoisett Neck Road.

William Harlow lived on Cannon St. and was father of the late Abner Harlow, for so many years Town Clerk. William Harlow also had a brother Abner who for many years was a partner in Harlow and LeBaron's Store (later the Anchorage, Village Shop, etc. building) and who built and lived in the Nash House on Main St. He was also stepfather of Mrs. Purrington who kept the diary quoted in these columns.

of Selectmen, as an accountant who has passed the C.P.A. examination, as a member of the teaching profession ever since 1946 with prior experience in 1938 and 1939, as a former member of your committee and as a reasonable and prudent businessman in real estate and accounting, I wish to appeal to your sense of decency, your sense of prudent business practice of which many of you are justly proud, of which many of you came up from the "ranks" and built yourself to an executive status, to reconsider seriously your vote for a business manager for Mr. Bristol. Your vote has made you cause many a smile among professional school men, especially in the administrative capacity, who say, "It's wonderful if Mr. Bristol can get away with it." Your vote has caused the Board of Selectmen of the member towns to ask, "When will it all stop?" and "What are those people up to?"

Let's analyse your vote:

Mrs. Barnes will still remain as accountant preparing warrants, posting and preparing the necessary accounting reports for the School Committee.

Mrs. Kern will remain as secretary with her various duties.

Mr. Bristol will remain as Superintendent with his duties.

Now, what will the Business Manager do? What is remaining? From my own observations, made over these past 16 or 17 years in the school game, there remains only the purchasing of supplies, etc.

At the present time, Mrs. Barnes or Mrs. Kern prepare the purchase orders-Mr. Bristol only signs them. Mr. Tirrell and the other janitors receive and sign the receiving notices. Therefor, the business manager will do very little in this category. Also, how often are supplies purchased? Rarely more than once or twice a year. This same analysis will apply to text books and other school operating materials.

The Business Manager will not have to deal with athletics, nor with the library, nor with the cafeteria. The monies from the lunch room are ably handled by the Business Department. Mr. Tirrell and the other janitors usually submit their requests.

Frankly speaking, what other duties could there be which are not handled by every Superintendent in this area? Even Bourne, with its business manager necessitated by the schools at Otis Air Force Base, would not have needed a business manager except for Federal Forms and "Red Tape".

Gentlemen, please reconsider your vote. As I have stated publicly and I repeat again, it is a senseless expenditure and there is no need for it. If Mr. Bristol cannot do his job, then the Committee should seriously consider a job

Dear friends,
We do not believe it is fitting to discuss the professional requirements of our work. You have a right to expect the most up-to-date service.
Methods used in preparation for burial are continually improving, year by year. We must constantly study to keep abreast.
Respectfully,
Carl C Cornwell

WTEV SIGNED ON THE AIR AT ONE O'CLOCK A.M. JANUARY 1, 1963.

WTEV, Channel 6, signed on the air at one o'clock a.m. January 1, 1963 with a special Dedicatory Program.

Despite construction obstacles, the new TV Station met its air target date 60 minutes after midnight from its transmitter in Tiverton, Rhode Island. High winds and severe cold delayed work on the microwave towers. New England's newest Television Station will serve the Southern Massachusetts and Rhode Island area.

General Manager, Vance L. Eckersley, said chief executives of two states, representatives of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, mayors of two major cities, spokesmen for the ABC-TV network and owners of WTEV participated in the opening program.

Opening night activities were viewed on home TV screens throughout the wide coverage area of WTEV. Mr. Eckersley said a formal "Open house and general public invitation viewing will be scheduled in late February or March of this year when the studio building at County and 8th Streets in New Bedford is completed and occupied."

At one o'clock a.m., the station's call letters and eagle symbol was flashed on followed by a film of various construction highlights and present scenes of the studios, transmitter and equipment.

On conclusion of the film and appropriate "Auld Lang Syne" background music, a station announcer greeted viewers and introduced opening night guests. Governors John A. Volpe of Massachusetts, John A. Notte, Jr. of Rhode Island welcomed WTEV to their respective States.

Mayors Edward F. Harrington of New Bedford and Walter H. Reynolds of Providence spoke for their communities as WTEV welcomed in 1963 and its own New Year presentations.

On conclusion of the special sign-on program, WTEV transmitted local and ABC programs through the remainder of January 1 on a regular schedule.
